

Vessel of Power (2024) 22 x 10 cm, clay, glaze, circuit board, bronze wire. Collection of the Artist.

Emerging from a vessel of power the copper thunderbird rests on a circuit board platform with lines of power flowing. Copper, long honored as a sacred material of the Anishinaabeg that carries healing, conductivity, and balance, becomes the bridge between worlds—its presence amplifying both spiritual energy and technological current. In this fusion, the Thunderbird guards not only the skies but the pathways of knowledge, reminding us that innovation is strongest when it remains grounded in ancestral wisdom.
